

Regulament

Street Boulder is a sport climbing event that takes place in the historic center of Serra San Quirico(AN) between the "climbing" walls identified prior to the event by our routesetter.

The climbing speciality that is practiced is bouldering, that is climbing without a rope, which reaches in some cases a maximum height of four meters (TOP). Falls are cushioned by crashpads and controlled by spotters.

The event will take place on short climbing routes, called problems, blocks or boulders, to be climbed without rope, placing the crash-pad in advance (to avoid the risk of possible injuries) on the marked routes within the walls of the village.

All members must have the equipment for safe bouldering; at least one crash pad and one head lamp for every two people and climbing shoes, people without safety equipment will be excluded from the event and removed immediately.

Participants must "protect" each other, in order to avoid injuries: In exceptional circumstances, during the course of the event, the organization may decide to close and delete one or more blocks to preserve the safety of the athletes or the integrity of the wall.

The bouldering areas available to participants are specified on the map provided at the infopoint at the time of registration.

The boulders are marked with a numbered image where the path of the problem is marked. Difficulties they range from the easiest to the most difficult block based on the color assigned by the tracker.

For the block to be valid, the member must start with his hands on the Start or Sit-Start and after lifting his feet from ground will have to reach the top, holding the last hold for at least 3 seconds.
